1.0 Purpose

This framework has been produced to support partner organisations in the development of a workforce that is competent and effectively trained in Mental Capacity Act (MCA) and Deprivation of Liberty Safeguards (DoLS) practices and which is continuously improving. It outlines the sets of competencies required for particular categories of job roles.

2.0 Competency framework rationale

Previously MCA & DoLS training has been based upon attendance at training at a range of levels. However completion of training does not evidence a worker's competence in any particular area or task, only that they have attended a training course.

This framework sets out a competency based approach to enable all staff working with adults to develop their skills. It is designed to raise standards and promote a consistent and appropriate response to adults whose mental capacity may be in question. It has been devised to provide a baseline for demonstrations of competence by staff who support adults.

3.0 What is competence?

A competence is the combination of the skills, knowledge and experience held by individual staff and this framework aims to ensure that these qualities inform practice in a way that is commensurate with an individual's role and responsibility. Regardless of training, competence grows through experience and the abilities of an individual to learn, adapt and apply care in an appropriate fashion.

4.0 What is the role of training?

All training should be designed to support workers to gain the underpinning knowledge required to achieve competence. It is therefore possible to have a standard expectation of what should be included with MCA & DoLS training (at any given level) regardless of how or by whom the training is delivered.

The use of a competency framework also enables learning from other training to be used. For instance consent training may support some workers to evidence against competency and know when further advice is required regarding an application to the Court of Protection (CoP).

Individual agencies will need to look at existing mechanisms that may contribute to the assessment. From April 2015, the Certificate of Fundamental Care will be necessary for Social Care support workers and Healthcare assistants before they work without supervision. The level one competencies are approximately aligned to these standards.

The competency framework also allows for consideration of other forms of Continuous Professional Development. This could take the form of training but could also include practical experience and workplace learning such as coaching and mentoring.

5.0 Who should complete the competency?

All staff should be assessed as competent against the competencies that are relevant to their job role and level of responsibility. The MCA provides the framework for actions and decision making where people may lack capacity. Whatever their role, all staff involved in decision making with adults must recognise their role in supporting this.

All staff need to demonstrate the first 6 competencies within the framework. Further competencies will be dependent upon job role and level of responsibility.

As the competencies are cumulative, all people working with adults should complete Level one.

6.0 What are the timescales for completion?

Individual agencies are required to set appropriate timescales for their staff to achieve required competence in order to be assured that their staff can practice effectively.

The timescales for successful demonstration of competency will depend upon the job role and responsibilities.

7.0 Carrying out the assessment of competence

Achieving competence requires more than just attending a training course although this may be an element of developing competence. The assessment of competence should ideally combine a mix of direct observation of practice as well as a process of exploration, discussion and questioning. This could be carried out in supervision or as part of the follow up to training. Assessment should only be undertaken by those competent to do so.

8.0 Supporting the assessment of competence

This framework includes guidance (Appendix 2) that can be used to record and assess a worker's competence. There are tools available for particular roles such as the Level 2 & 3 Diploma's in Health and Social Care for example.

Failure to meet required levels of competency will require discussed in supervision and should result in supervisory support and training.

9.0 Further developments

To develop an assessment strategy for MCA competencies including:-

- Development of assessor prompts and format for assessment of competence at all levels
- Mechanism for auditing that staff competence is checked by an appropriate manager

Adult Safeguarding

Adult Safeguarding Assessment of competence support tool: Level 1 Competencies

The assessment of the competence of a worker should include consideration of their knowledge, understanding and skills. The Multi-Agency Adult Safeguarding Competency Framework

Assessments should be a continuous exercise carried out as part of supervision, management and career development. Particular attention should be paid to an individuals' competency when:

- they commence in role, take on a new role or return from an extended period of absence
- on completion of any training.
- If an event or incident has raised questions about their competency

Competency assessment should be carried out in the workplace, within supervision and within appraisal meetings, and should include a combination of methods to evidence competency including:

- Direct observation of practice and performance
- Questions can be used to assess if the person has the necessary knowledge
- Scenario based questions/case studies and real life activities allow a person to demonstrate their skills that would be relevant to actual situations
- Reflective accounts
- Accounts by a third party observer (including people from partner agencies)
- Evidence of successful completion of mandatory safeguarding training or qualification with an assessed component against the relevant area of knowledge
- Achievement of a competency based qualification such as Qualifications Credit Framework (QCF) i.e. Diploma level 2, 3, 4 or 5
- Adult safeguarding documentation, e.g. notes of safeguarding meetings, reports of safeguarding concerns, assessment etc.
- Feedback from adults with care and support needs and carers

Assessment should also reflect a person's knowledge and understanding of the Adult Safeguarding: Multi-Agency Policy & Procedures for the protection of Adults with Care & Support needs in the West Midlands and the organisations own internal safeguarding procedures

Each member of staff should have a record of their competency in relation to adult safeguarding.

It is the responsibility of the member of staff to provide evidence of their competency. It is essential that managers and supervisors have the skills and ability to encourage, enable and motivate workers (paid and voluntary) to develop and learn.

The table below can be used as a guide for supervisors assessing competence. The prompts are potential questions for assessors to use when meeting with workers.

Assessment of competence guidance

The assessment of the competence of a worker (paid or voluntary) should include consideration of their knowledge, understanding and skills. It should be a continuous exercise carried out as part of supervision, management and career development. Particular attention should be paid to an individual's competency when they commence work, on completion of any training, if an event has raised questions about their competency and when they take on a new role in relation to MCA & DoLS.

Competency assessment should be carried out in the workplace, within supervision and within appraisal meetings. The best competence assessment processes consist of a combination of methods to give confidence of competency including:

- Direct observation
- Questions can be used to assess if the person has the necessary knowledge
- Scenario based questions/case studies and real life activities allow a person to demonstrate their skills that would be relevant to actual situations
- Use of reflective accounts
- Accounts by a third party observer (including people from partner agencies)
- Evidence on knowledge may be shown by successful completion of mandatory safeguarding training or qualification with an assessed component against the relevant area of knowledge
- Evidence of competency may be shown by attainment of a competency based qualification such as Qualifications Credit Framework (QCF)
- Documentation, e.g. notes of assessment of mental capacity, rational for best interest decisions, requests for IMCA etc.
- Feedback from service users and carers

Assessment should also reflect a person's knowledge and understanding of the organisations own internal policies and procedures for MCA & DoLS. Each member of staff should have a record of their competency in relation to MCA & DoLS. It is the responsibility of the member of staff to provide evidence of their competency. It is essential that managers and supervisors have the skills and ability to encourage, enable and motivate workers (paid and voluntary) to develop and learn.

Individual agencies will have their own documentation for recording competency and should act as a guide for supervisors assessing competence. The incorporation of prompts of potential questions for assessors to use when meeting with workers may be useful.
